Hi Stephen,

Please find enclosed the annexures in accordance with your affidavit (as it is currently drafted).

At the moment, we have one too many (10 is the limit). However, we should wait until we hear from the Barrister prior to removing any.

Many thanks,

Yours faithfully,

Good morning,

Before getting into the final changes that need to be made to this Affidavit (which are a number of minimal but factual corrections) Have we addressed the revenue generated from the Brisbane property over the last 10 years. I guesstimate in the ballpark of $600,000, will we attend this at the April 11 hearing?

Regarding the Affidavit, as I don't have the actual document to edit, I provide the attached .pdf guiding corrections. I also provide two additional attachments supporting two of the proposed changes (evidence I know we cannot add more, but here it is anyways). And please replace the photo used for Annexure H - photo moving day to the one I have attached.

Also I am concerned to see what I deem to be vital information on page 16 when I was told we are only allowed 15 pages. It suggests to me we are risking the exclusion of this page. Please send me the editable document and I will try to squeeze down to 15 pages. I think there is a lot of wiggle room on page 13 without harm.

I anticipate that when the occasion arises to clarify our delay to the court, the story will reflect my meticulousness, undermined by an unexpected betrayal from my soon-to-be ex-wife and her longtime accountant, rather than attributing it solely to my ADHD.

I worked 10 years in commercial insurance for Coface and Aon managing multinational account receivable insurance programs and analyzing their policies contracts. Me being uninformed of our finances has far more to do with blind faith and loyalty towards Heather than anything else.

Regards,

Stephen

Good morning,

Before getting into the final changes that need to be made to this Affidavit (which are a number of minimal but factual corrections) Have we addressed the revenue generated from the Brisbane property over the last 10 years. I guesstimate in the ballpark of $600,000, will we attend this at the April 11 hearing?

Regarding the Affidavit, as I don't have the actual document to edit, I provide the attached .pdf guiding corrections. I also provide two additional attachments supporting two of the proposed changes (evidence I know we cannot add more, but here it is anyways). And please replace the photo used for Annexure H - photo moving day to the one I have attached.

Also I am concerned to see what I deem to be vital information on page 16 when I was told we are only allowed 15 pages. It suggests to me we are risking the exclusion of this page. Please send me the editable document and I will try to squeeze down to 15 pages. I think there is a lot of wiggle room on page 13 without harm.

I anticipate that when the occasion arises to clarify our delay to the court, the story will reflect my meticulousness, undermined by an unexpected betrayal from my soon-to-be ex-wife and her longtime accountant, rather than attributing it solely to my ADHD.

I worked 10 years in commercial insurance for Coface and Aon managing multinational account receivable insurance programs and analyzing their policies contracts. Me being uninformed of our finances has far more to do with blind faith and loyalty towards Heather than anything else.

Regards,

Stephen

We didn't discuss but please make the small changes with respect to how I speak about my ADHD diagnosis (essentially just drop I recognise its impact). While I do recognise the impact, it has not impacted the last 9 years of looking after the kids. So, I'd rather just say, I see the benefits in the medication and leave it at that.

Heather is not leaving me because of my ADHD I have her as early as April this year sing me praise in writing and numerous times over the years

I see we say to return funds removed to former accounts. If that can't be accommodated then a trust account (which was communicated initially by Delaney being the case) not sure it still is or she's using it for work.

Hi Stephen,

We were only able to send the Affidavit to our Barrister yesterday afternoon. She has not yet settled the document. Strictly speaking it needs to be filed by 4pm this afternoon. Prue is following up to see when she can respond to us.

We will keep you updated.

Kind regards,
Jacqui

Dear Stephen,

I strongly encourage you to leave that statement in if you can. The reason is that the court will be looking for you to have insight into potential issues and this is a major one. It needs to be acknowledged, this does not imply that it's a problem, but it is something you are aware of and account for.

Yours faithfully,

We didn't discuss but please make the small changes with respect to how I speak about my ADHD diagnosis (essentially just drop I recognise its impact). While I do recognise the impact, it has not impacted the last 9 years of looking after the kids. So, I'd rather just say, I see the benefits in the medication and leave it at that.

Heather is not leaving me because of my ADHD I have her as early as April this year sing me praise in writing and numerous times over the years

On Wed, 27 Mar 2024, 3:14 am Stephen Cooke, <stephencooke.c@gmail.com> wrote:

Good morning,

Before getting into the final changes that need to be made to this Affidavit (which are a number of minimal but factual corrections) Have we addressed the revenue generated from the Brisbane property over the last 10 years. I guesstimate in the ballpark of $600,000, will we attend this at the April 11 hearing?

Regarding the Affidavit, as I don't have the actual document to edit, I provide the attached .pdf guiding corrections. I also provide two additional attachments supporting two of the proposed changes (evidence I know we cannot add more, but here it is anyways). And please replace the photo used for Annexure H - photo moving day to the one I have attached.

Also I am concerned to see what I deem to be vital information on page 16 when I was told we are only allowed 15 pages. It suggests to me we are risking the exclusion of this page. Please send me the editable document and I will try to squeeze down to 15 pages. I think there is a lot of wiggle room on page 13 without harm.

I anticipate that when the occasion arises to clarify our delay to the court, the story will reflect my meticulousness, undermined by an unexpected betrayal from my soon-to-be ex-wife and her longtime accountant, rather than attributing it solely to my ADHD.

I worked 10 years in commercial insurance for Coface and Aon managing multinational account receivable insurance programs and analyzing their policies contracts. Me being uninformed of our finances has far more to do with blind faith and loyalty towards Heather than anything else.

Regards,

Stephen

Hi Prue, I merely want to replace a blurry duffle bag picture with one that accurately reflects far more clearly the significant move that actually took place on Dec 2nd, please do replace the picture. We don't need approval that takes another day.

We were only able to send the Affidavit to our Barrister yesterday afternoon. She has not yet settled the document. Strictly speaking it needs to be filed by 4pm this afternoon. Prue is following up to see when she can respond to us.

We will keep you updated.

Kind regards,
Jacqui

Hi Jacqueline

Don't we need to get this off to the he court soon?

I need time to review before signing do we know the page limit yet which will be accepted?

Stephen

The child impact report suggest the move was not significant. No, very significant! Please provide the picture that speaks to that.

Hi Stephen,

Please find enclosed the annexures in accordance with your affidavit (as it is currently drafted).

At the moment, we have one too many (10 is the limit). However, we should wait until we hear from the Barrister prior to removing any.

Many thanks,

Yours faithfully,

Prue Garvin | Paralegal

I am not sure if they are ready to go yet as we were waiting for the Barrister to confirm which ones she wanted. However, @Prue Garvin, please would you share with Stephen when they are ready?

Thanks,

Jacqui

Copy attached. I also shared your additional paragraph provided today to our Barrister. I am hoping she can identify the material that is less helpful so that we can cut it down to size as we are well over our limit.

Kind regards,
Jacqui
