Hi Jo,

Thanks for that. I completely understand your security concerns regarding links. I've broken the file into seven parts, each under 25MB to comply with Google's limitations, and I'll be sending them to you in separate emails. Please note that Part 1 is attached to this email.

Additionally, I am simply doing my best to respond to the form question where it asked: "Please write down any concerns about the welfare of your child which the independent children's lawyer should be aware of (and which you have not already told us about in your affidavit material)." I wanted to ensure my response is noted.

I hope this helps.

Kind regards,

Stephen Cooke

Any additional information needs to be in the form of an affidavit.

I really just need the forms completed as requested.

As you can appreciate, I don't click on links sent to me for security purposes.

Hi Jo,

I just left you a voicemail with my phone number. The file is a PDF, but it's slightly larger in size.

Dear Ms. Markham,

Please accept my apologies for the delay in reaching out. The past couple of months have been challenging as I've managed personal and financial matters, with my priority being maintaining stability while the boys were with me. This meant I had to achieve as much as possible when they were not with me, take pauses when I could while they were, and power through this transition as quickly as possible to establish our new home and ensure they had the amenities they are used to.

In addition to moving and thoroughly cleaning both the former marital home and our new home, I had to be cautious with my spending to meet basic needs, cover legal costs, and comply with the April orders, all within a tight budget. I rented a Britex cleaner multiple times, purchased bulk cleaning products, hired movers, and paid the bond and a few weeks' rent for the new home. To save on costs, I completed much of the work myself, which impacted my sleep schedule for a few weeks. Creating a comfortable environment for the boys was my top priority.

Cash flow issues made it difficult to cover legal expenses promptly, but my lawyer allowed me to pay in installments, which helped ease the pressure. I'm pleased to inform you that I've received an interim property settlement following the sale of the former marital home, relieving financial uncertainty.

Despite these challenges, I've devoted significant time and effort to preparing this report for you. During this period, Diamond IT, where I'm completing an unpaid internship, has been extraordinarily flexible with my schedule, allowing me to focus on both personal and professional commitments. The company has shown great interest in my future, and the idea is to transition into full-time employment once my internship is complete, as I continue working towards certifications in my field.

Thank you for your understanding, and I look forward to discussing this further. Orders and report attached below.

Kind regards,

Stephen Cooke

Dear Ms Markham

Another option is my client (the father) can make the boys available on any Thursday at the time as suggested by you below.
